Rebecca has over a decade of experience counseling clients on international patent and trademark procurement strategies within the life sciences, chemistry, novel materials, and mechanical devices industries. She often works with startups, public companies, universities, and research institutions to develop and defend their patents. Rebecca also helps clients position their intellectual property for license or sale and negotiates such agreements to completion.

Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Rebecca was a patent attorney at a mid-sized law firm in Boston, MA.
