Grace has significant experience in federal litigation, government enforcement, and international trade matters.

Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, Grace served as a trial attorney with the Federal Maritime Commission, where she represented the agency in enforcement actions under the Shipping Act. She worked closely with investigators to develop cases, and was part of the team that negotiated a US$1.975 million compromise agreement with a global shipping company.

Grace previously served as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Jennifer Choe-Groves of the US Court of International Trade. In that role, she drafted opinions, orders, and memoranda and analyzed matters involving antidumping and countervailing duties, protest denials, and exclusion orders. Prior to that, she clerked for the Honorable Darlene M. Soltys of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, where she gained experience with court proceedings and drafted evidentiary opinions and orders.

Grace earned her JD, with honors, from the George Washington University Law School and dual BA degrees in History and Asian Studies, with a minor in Social Work, from the University of Texas at Austin.
